

The Association for Women in Communications Detroit Chapter

Centennial Soiree

Join members and friends of the Association for Women in Communications Detroit Chapter for a rousing roundtable conversation about 100 years of working female communicators.

Watch a short video of the pioneering members of Theta Sigma Phi in 1909. Join veteran freelance journalist Julie Candler who carved a new path in auto writing in her 40s and ran for Michigan House of Representatives in her 88th year. Meet utility infielder Marcia Danner, journalist and writer who organized meetings and subgroups within AWC for 30 years, including a club for a new band of high-powered, working mothers in the early 1980s and contributed to a millennial book, "Global Journeys in Metro Detroit: A Multicultural Guide to the Motor City." Vanessa G. Birch leads the next generation in coordinating communications projects for a top law firm in its Michigan and Washington DC offices.

Meeting will take place in Farmington Hills at the home of Karen Spica, who, in the 1990s became a National Headliner for AWC for her trailblazing communications in the auto industry.
